

Kingsley Xu

"Colorful Chinese visual magic inspired by luminous wands and schooldays"

Close-Up Magic | Stage Magic

Biography

Kingsley Xu is a Chinese magician and magic inventor whose Fool Us act, A School Day, used music, bright visual transformations and a Harry Potter-inspired performance frame. Current magic-industry listings credit him with X Light, a luminous wand and feather-production effect, and other visual props built for stage or close-up presentation. The television appearance confirms an active professional identity in 2025, but research did not find a performer-controlled website, current home city, direct booking route or sufficient evidence that Xu accepts general event work. FindMagic should publish a factual profile without presenting him as bookable.

Booking, profile, and official links

Booking enquiries are subject to current tour availability.

Booking enquiry <https://findmagic.show/kingsley-xu#enquire>

FindMagic profile <https://findmagic.show/kingsley-xu>