

Laurent Piron

"Belgian magic giving paper and chance a theatrical life"

Stage Magic

Biography

Laurent Piron is a Belgian contemporary magician whose theatre-led practice treats ordinary objects as expressive characters. His represented biography traces professional work from 2005, study at France's National Centre for Circus Arts and the 2018 co-founding of Compagnie Alogique. Piron won the 2022 FISM stage Grand Prix with Paper Ball, the act he later used to fool Penn and Teller. Current international representation offers performance booking and press materials for his visual, aesthetic productions. Research did not confirm a performer-owned current site, direct personal email or one dependable present home city.
