

Rabby Yang

"Chinese visual manipulation built from precision, cubes and elegant motion"

Stage Magic

Biography

Rabby Yang, also identified as Yang Zhengyu, is a Chinese magician known for polished visual manipulation and the Rubik's Cube routine that made him the first Chinese performer to fool Penn and Teller. His performer-authored video publishes a professional email, while the International Alliance of Chinese Magicians currently lists him as a vice chair and records Academy of Magical Arts youth recognition. Those sources establish continuing professional-community activity in the United States and China. Research did not locate a working performer-owned website, current home city, public calendar or clear general booking offer.
